Managing corporate and occupational health should be part of your company's vision for the future. An employee screening programme can show your commitment to investment in your employees health and wellbeing.

To maintain and promote productivity, it is important that employees are healthy enough to work effectively in the first place. We're here to help detect employee health problems early and provide advice and tailored health management programmes which will ensure the long term success of your business.

At 3fivetwo, we have developed a fully flexible range of options that can be tailored to both your organisation and your employees needs to include:

- Corporate occupational health assessment
- Pre-employment health assessment
- Fitness for work assessment
- Ill health retirement assessment

- Night worker assessment
- Respiratory surveillance & lung function testing
- Hearing surveillance & audiometry
- Vision screening
- Skin assessment
- Stress assessment & management
- DVLA sleep apnoea screening
